Context

Facing the Past is an arts and research programme to reflect, reveal and redress omissions in the way the City of Lancaster has commemorated its role as the fourth largest slavery port in the UK.

In the summer of 2020, following Black Lives Matters Movement, a group of activists, arts and heritage organisations, faith & community groups and academics came together to facilitate a meaningful response to create new agency and awareness of issues of Slavery and the historic black presence in the city. Lancaster Priory Commissioning Group formed with the backing MP David Lammy as Patron.

In 2021, with the financial backing of Arts Council England, a programme of creative workshops, public consultation and feasibility and scoping have resulted further funding from The National Heritage Lottery Fund to produce a programme of work which responds to pervasive legacy of profit, power and persecution of enslaved Africans in the historic City of Lancaster in meaningful and multifaceted ways.

Facing the Past was conceived following the vandalism of slave trader memorials in Lancaster Priory Churchyard and the multifaceted community response which grew. There is an urgent need to pull together community activity, archive and academic research as the foundation from which future Facing the Past activity can reference and build upon. A digital trail with physical markers across the city offers scope for a community-wide shared resource for research, archive, documentation and partnership working. Building on the existing Slavery Trail & Tour lead by Alan Rice, an interactive digital archive and slavery trail can be filtered with tags appropriate to age/ content/ geography on a bespoke platform with identified digital mapping specialists. Training for community and school groups will take place so that communities can populate this site and create their own, bespoke trails and records to generate a useful and dynamic community-led archive and shared repository. The Lancaster Priory Commissioning Group seek to expand awareness of the city's recent past through a unique, fulfilling and accessible heritage to project new layers on the city's history through multiple voices. A piece of research will be commissioned to drill down into Lancaster Priory Church's complicity in the Transatlantic Slavery and Black presence.

A wider network of cultural programming, including, participatory events, public realm consultation, festivals, and training opportunities, this post will act as the conduit to new understanding and an important cultural response to the complexity of Slavery issues both historic and connected to the present day.

The Vision

All Lancaster residents will be aware of the Facing the Past programme through a multi- agency approach to PR and Comms. People will be aware of Lancaster Transatlantic Slavery connections and may take steps to involved themselves more deeply in the issues and legacy of the past and present. The post holder will capitalise on the explosion of interest in the subject and facilitate new connections through excellent public relation and communication work.

Purpose

There has been an explosion of interest and activity in Lancaster's Transatlantic Slave Trail with several groups working to raise awareness, educate, research and creatively respond to the injustices of the past and present

The city holds stories of individual slaves, Abolitionists and web of slavery profits. Lancaster Priory Commissioning Group are keen to upskill themselves and the next generation to challenge the extent to which we change the local knowledge of the city and shift from a 'didactic' conversation of slavery into something experiential and community driven. This will in turn support a wider campaign to rewrite local history and raise awareness of contemporary social injustice. Digital Mapping is a new and important venture for Lancaster Priory Commissioning Group.

The aim to encourage new audiences to re- activate their imaginations for debate, and positive action and see their historic surroundings in a new light.
